When available, Librarian provides reference and research assistance and instruction. The librarian assists SRL patrons with DIY forms (court employees cannot provide legal advice). Call the Clerk's Office for inform ation (585-201-5715). Library has a historical collection of WNY region Polk directories. Buffalo Supreme C ourt Library phone number is posted for patrons needing assistance with library resources.	1
We provide continuing legal education (CLE) opportunities.	1
We partner with the Maryland Judiciary's Help Center by providing a computer station to video chat with an attorney.	1
We partner with 3 public libraries throughout San Diego County to provide access to select legal databases while that library is open and a law librarian is present for 4 hours, two times a month to provide reference s ervices at those 3 locations.	1
We participated in the "Ask a Law Librarian" chats with all other public law librarians in other counties within California.	1
We have hosted a "Lawyer in the Library" program in the past, working with the local legal aid office. It was I ogistically difficult because they had to verify income eligibility.	1

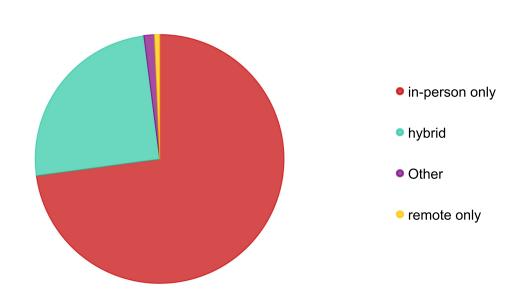

We have begun providing service to the Hennepin County jail by making weekly visits to speak with the folk s incarcerated there. This is in addition to receiving legal information requests by mail as we have for about seven years. We are a "legal kiosk" location - one of a couple of hundred kiosks purchased with CARES Act money during the pandemic and maintained by Minnesota Civil Legal Aid. This kiosk can be used for meetin g with civil legal aid attorneys, attending court hearings, and for legal research (in some locations they have also been used for medical appointments and job interviews).	1
We have an extensive website of materials to help people get started on a variety of topics from home. We vet and collect reputable information sources and arrange them so people have access by topic. We have a ready-reference collection we call the "goody box" that has folders on often requested topics, or topics that i t's hard to quickly find info about. People asking about those topics in person get handed a folder of informa tion to review or copy to start their journey. Post-covid we also send out materials via email. We didn't do th at prior for a variety of reasons, but started doing so during covid and have maintained that.	1
We do free legal clinics, Veteran's law legal clincs, Zoom booths, form print outs, free printing, and technolo gy use, free wifi, county referral resources, assistance with helping fill out forms.	1
We are so small and have such a small budget, that there's really not much we can offer.	1
We are exploring appointment-based reference services for pro se and public patrons.	1
We answer legal questions from people incarcerated in the state or transferred to another prison from New Mexico by mail. We provide 10 pages of information per inmate per month at no cost.	1
Unfortunately, we don't do as much to provide legal resources to the greater community as in other states.	1
This fall we will be starting the law librarian in the public library program (Embedded Law Librarians). In addition we will be starting some regular training with the public librarians to increase their skills on the legal dat abases. We will also be creating our video series that will explain how to do court related or legal research t asks.	1
The University of Iowa Law Library and the State Law Library of Iowa received a grant to create the Peopl e's Law Library at https://www.peopleslawiowa.org/. Both also provide reference assistance to SRLs, and I believe the State Law Library provides document delivery for them as well.	1
The Self-Help Center for the Utah Courts is not located physically in the library and is a virtual service. Anyo ne with a case in Utah can reach them virtually through phone or email.	1

The Berkshire Law Library is one of 15 Trial Court Law Libraries (TCLL) in the state of Massachusetts. We collaborate with each other and can borrow materials from any of the TCLL. In addition to in-person reference, chat reference, email, and document delivery, one of our libraries also offers Zoom reference.	1
The American Association of Law Libraries (AALL) built a new tool to help librarians and the public find prim ary legal resources and their local public law libraries across the United States and US Territories. The tool i ncludes contact information and which law libraries provide services to the incarcerated. It is very helpful! htt ps://www.aallnet.org/advocacy/government-relations/online-legal-information/	1

Our three libraries provide free access on-site to Westlaw, Lexis Advance, and FastCase. We also provide free access to the State Bar of Wisconsin's BooksUnbound which is a digital format of all the State Bar's CLE legal practice materials and sample forms. Our libraries also provide free access to other secondary source database on-site. Reference librarians are able to assist the public with their search and retrieval of informat ion. Reference librarians will scan materials and forms from our collections and email directly to the public, within copyright restrictions. If the member of the public does not have email access, we will coordinate with a neighboring public library. We will email information to the public library who will then connect with the member of the public.	1
Our library is expanding its access to justice for SRLNs by updating and expanding its outreach program, Le gal Research for the Non-Lawyer, at 3-5 branches each of Saint Louis Public Library and Saint Louis Count y Library. We also are developing a Pro Se Handbook for use by this population and purchasing more NOL O self-help volumes. Saint Louis Public Library has a free once a month legal clinic at its central location run by Legal Services of Eastern Missouri Saint Louis County Library has a program called TAP In Center for he Ip with certain criminal court matters (It is referenced on our Legal Websites page noted in a prior answer)	1

Additional services available to the public include access to our book collection (although they aren't availab le for circulation), e-mail and other computer services, directions to other local organizations, phone books, dictionaries, a conference room, cell phones for public use while in the law library, cell phone chargers, lapt op usage while inside the law library, etc.	1

38. What changes were made to your library's services as a result of the pandemic?

Response	Count
Zoom reference is an addition. The only other changes were that for a period we were closed to the public, and we had remote access to Westlaw and LexisNexis. Now we are back to normal, with in-person access to the library, and no remote access to the paid databases. Zoom reference continues.	1
Zoom access on all public computers. Fees for printing, copying and faxing eliminated or greatly reduced. N o longer keep printed copies of forms. Access as needed on website or send them to the circuit clerk's offic e.	1
Workshops are now online only. We continue to offer remote forms review by appointment.	1
When the library was closed to the public during the pandemic, we shifted from a strictly in-person service model to a virtual one whereby we responded to patron requests by email or forwarded phone calls. Patrons still email the library with questions, but those numbers have decreased.	1
We were only closed for two and a half months, but we expanded and emphasized our remote services and increased our electronic subscriptions permanently	1

We temporarily offered in-person appointments at the library for pro-se divorce assistance (which we typicall y offered at the Philadelphia Family Court Help Center. The Help Center was closed for a period of time during the pandemic). When the Help Center reopened, we stopped offering appointments for these services at the library (except in extreme circumstances) and returned to providing these services at the Help Center on ly.	1
We remained open in-person throughout with minimal impact to service. Our only change was to limit the nu mber of in-person users at any time to two (2) with substantial distancing enforced. That was temporary and we are now back to providing service to unlimited number of users at a time.	1
We reduced the number of public computers to meet social distancing guidelines and implemented a 2-hour time limit for computer usage.	1
We raised the number of copies/printouts that are free before the fee is imposed. Prior to the pandemic, we waived up to 5 pages; now we waive up to 10. Otherwise, our services are the same as pre-pandemic.	1
We now offer video reference options, we have more efficient mailing options, and we have more remote off erings for the public	1
We moved our Lawyers in the Library program to an online format.	1
We limited time patrons could spend in the library to 30 minutes a day.	1
We implemented no significant changes as a result of the pandemic, as we were fully operational throughou t this period.	1
We have limited patron access to the first of our three floors only and cut back how long users can stay on the computers.	1
We have eliminated all fees for our document delivery services as part of our commitment to access to legal information for all. The staff from all of our full time locations now participate in our province wide email service (instead of just the main location), which gives staff the opportunity to work remotely on those days.	1
We have continued to offer remote hearing assistance and have two "Zoom Hearing Rooms" available in the library.	1
We have become the go-to resource for efiling and remote court / Zoom access. We are also being heavily utilized by other departments for the development and editing of public facing documents, press releases, g eneral orders, local court rules, policies, and websites.	1
We did increase some remote services, specifically with our family and housing clinics.	1
We developed online video tutorials to assist patrons who we could not provide one-on-one service to. https://mncourts.libguides.com/appeals/videos https://mncourts.libguides.com/LegalTopics/videos	1
We converted to a remote, document delivery, curbside pickup library from April 2000 until Jan 2, 2023	1

We continue to provide enhanced virtual services, resources, and programs. We had to lay off staff and red uce hours due to budget issues and haven't recovered from that.	1
We continue to offer daily Zoom reference hours on weekdays in addition to in-person assistance at the ser vice desk.	1
We changed our legal advice programs from accepting walk-in self-represented litigants to scheduling appointments for SRLs.	1
We arrange with the publishers of WestLaw and LexisNexis to have WestLawNext and LexisNexis advance database accessible to the public at our library website.	1
We added Zoom reference	1
We added an email address that is regularly answered.	1
We accept debit and credits only. We offer space for Zoom hearings.	1
Very few - we already had remote reference services in place as well as e-books and databases.	1
Upon the return of the in-house staff after about eight weeks, we were able to resume all normal services an d procedures.	1
Unsure, this County has only had a law librarian since September, 2022.	1
There were no permanent changes. Once lockdown was over, we carried on as before.	1
The main change since the pandemic is that the majority of our programming (CLEs and some other program, like our book club) are now primarily done in virtual format. We found that patrons prefer virtual programs for a variety of reasons, and this also accommodates those who cannot come in person for health or other reasons.	1
The Linn County Law Library began sending more information to patrons via email since many of them were n't willing to visit the facility during the pandemic. Both the scanner and copier were highly used to generate information for patrons. Funding for the law library was redeuced, thus I had to cancel our subscription to W estlaw as it became too expensive for the law library to maintain.	1
The library was initially closed to the public and only offered virtual services. The library slowly opened back up, first through appointments and eventually to fully open in-person hours.	1
The library was closed to everyone for a few months; eventually, we allowed limited access to our campus s tudents, faculty, and staff, but the public and attorneys weren't allowed access. Over time, those groups wer e allowed, but with proof of vaccine, which restricted the public again. Now we're pretty much back to our pr e-pandemic "normal", except with no weekend or evening reference service as we have fewer librarians to s taff.	1
The library was closed so we could only access online materials.	1

The Law Library's in-person access became limited to current faculty, students, and staff of Saint Louis University School of Law.	1
The law library is housed inside a public library. The building was closed for several months. Once the public library resumed open services, the Law Library's materials were available for access.	1
The biggest changes have been to programming. Lawyer in the Library remains online only and legal prese ntations are now offered in a hybrid format, in-person, streaming online and recorded on our YouTube page.	1
Temporarily limited hours; Building entry screenings	1
Switch to online resources from print Remote access to Lexis and Westlaw Ability to work from home	1
Some staff now work remotely, either all of the time or part of the time.	1
social distancing and masking	1
Shorter reference hours.	1
Service group was tightened to law school community only.	1
restricted number of users in the space also time limit on how long people could use the resources	1
Remote eBook library available to subscribers	1
Reference attorney services now mostly remote.	1
Plexiglass separating public from reference services and also plexiglass between computers; closing off sea ting in remote parts of the library. Zoom CLE courses for attorneys. Added mediated searching service (pd, $20 per 20 minutes). Added legal research databases to two public library branch locations.	1
Physical access to the federal court, Alaska Branch library is by appointment only. Expansion of virtual reference service and continued services to inmates.	1
Paging of materials (for law school patrons only)	1
Our print collection has largely been eliminated.	1
Our CLE courses went from in-person to hybrid just before the pandemic. During the pandemic they went all on-line and have continued that way and are very successful. We offer CLEs that are of general interest so many non-attorneys take advantage of them, but they are not geared to SRLs.	1
Our biggest change was our lawyer in the library program only being offered on Zoom now. It will remain on Zoom for the foreseeable future. We also assist people with Zoom hearings and have designated rooms to r	1 eserve for Zoom usage. We also added online chats and expanded email reference.

Not sure, as I wasn't here at the time.	1
None, we currently provide all of the services that we did prior to the pandemic.	1
None that are not addressed above.	1
None really. We were busier than usual because we were responding to law library colleagues who were wo rking from home and without access to their own print copies of materials they needed.	1
None on a permanent basis. Services are back to what they were pre-pandemic.	1
None at present. We did close for a few weeks and limit the seating available to patrons.	1
none	1
No public access.	1
n/a	1
Mostly remote services. However, limited in person access was granted due to the courthouse remaining op en even though direct access to the library itself was not. Programs were all online.	1
More virtual access	1
More remote services and fewer in-person services and trying to maintain remote services and build in-person services back in	1
More of a focus on digital resources, both the resource but also how we share and reach our patrons	1
More emphasis on remote/hybrid services	1
More access to services remotely	1
Major changes include transition from cash-only to no-cash payments (POS card/contactless payment & onl ine payments); now offer fee-based notary services in the library; acquiring access to more online materials and reducing print subscriptions.	1
Mailing out documents, reduced in person visits, clinics offered remote by zoom or phone, ask a law libraria n option, email, and phone.	1
Limited access due to renovations during the pandemic	1
In-Person access was shut down for about three months. The limited legal assistance program was shut do wn for one year.	1
Increased security measures and behavior rules for library patrons. Moved live/live-broadcast Legal Talks to Zoom only. Created mini-videos on COVID-related legal issues.	1

Increased remote options and access to technology provided to patrons. Decrease in lawyer usage, includin g after-hours use.	1
Increased e-mailing of resources	1
Increase in volume of use of remote services, including telephone, email, and chat.	1
I was not here, but the library was closed for a time and then was reopened by appointment only for a few m onths.	1
I was not at this library during the pandemic. but from what I understand services went mostly virtual with so me limited in-person assistance.	1
Free access to printing without cost.	1
Expansion of legal seminars and educational programs, expanded offsite access to legal databases, expanded email reference	1
Expansion and focus on remote access to materials (eBook access) and law librarians (email reference, ch at/text, Zoom reference program)	1
During the state's stay-at-home order, we instituted chat reference and remote Westlaw access for public pa trons (and obviously could only do the latter because Westlaw instituted it.) Idaho's restrictions were droppe d very early compared to a lot of the U.S July 2020 if I'm remembering correctly.	1
During the pandemic, due to state and local restrictions, we had periods of time where we were closed for in -person access. All services went online - a lot of phone, email, document delivery. All of our classes went o nline. When restrictions were relaxed, we were able to offer limited access to the building by appointment a nd/or limited seating, curbside pickup. We went back to full services in June 2022 and maintained a robust o ffering of remote databases, online classes, phone/email/document delivery services.	1
During the first year of the pandemic, services were limited to side-walk circulation, phone & email reference services, and on-demand remote access to legal research databases. As of July 2021, in-person services were once again available to library users. CLE opportunities were greatly expanded with the use of Zoom. As a result, the library's continuing legal educations has greatly transitioned to a webinar format that is available to anyone. CLE classes are at no cost.	1
Court Help Center remains on appointment only basis	1
Appointment only access. Stacks are closed to the public.	1
Although we have always provided materials via email and phone reference, after the pandemic the number of people who utilize those services has continued to grow.	1
All services have been restored. We continue to clean computer workstations and furniture between custom ers.	1

All of our classes are now in a remote/online format and we don't foresee changing that as we are having hi gher attendance rates and are able to get a wider variety of speakers.	1
Addition of glass screens for staff. Spacing of computers.	1
Added e-mail contact/assistance.	1

What impacted us more than the pandemic was the loss of space we experienced in 2016. We're doing the best we can to continue to effectively fulfill the legal research needs of the bench, bar, and public, but the la ck of space brings with it several difficulties in doing so. Our largest obstacle is a result of no longer having t ables or designated spaces for patrons to perform research. Basically, the library is 'standing room only'.	1
We worked with a local non-profit group, Springfield-Eugene Tenant Association, via a grant, to help create t enant/landlord law information guides and then translate them into Spanish. Tenant/Landlord area was chos en with the knowledge that more people were being displaced at a staggering rate with repercussions of the pandemic.	1
We now have a completely enclosed reference desk, behind Plexiglass, like a bank We are now almost completely SRL-focused as attorneys don't come in anymore	1
We hope that AI will make it easy for the public to access justice.	1

We don't offer clinics or lawyers in the library because we are in the county seat of the largest county/judicia I district in the state and those services are offered by the court in conjunction with legal nonprofits. We refer patrons to those programs regularly and work collaboratively with our self-help center (a court program).	1
We are truly a grass roots library and self-help center. Our biggest concentration now will be being able to p rovide services in the self-help center such as scanning, email, copies, etc.	1
The Ulster Supreme Court Library has not been staffed full time since approx. 2018. Staff have maintained the collection and provided remote service when possible and in-person assistance by appointment. The position for a full-time degreed Librarian is currently posted. Ulster County is in a legal aid desert, the importance of having a Librarian at this librarian cannot be overstated.	1
The Sullivan County Library has not had dedicated staff since approximately 2015. The library collection has seen maintained by a staff person shared with another Court. Patrons are referred to other staffed 3d JD libraries for remote assistance.	1
The Schoharie County Law library has not been staffed since approx 2015. The library has been maintained by other library staff in the District since the former librarian (MLIS) retired. The law library was completely d estroyed in a 2011 hurricane, the library was closed for months and approximately 50% of the original collection was replaced.	1
The courts have provided this list of public law libraries in Virginia (link below), but several of these libraries closed during the pandemic and never re-opened. https://www.vacourts.gov/courtadmin/library/virginia_public_lib.html	1
Thank you for updating and collecting this information. It is good to take a look and see what everyone is doing.	1
Several clarifications of answers: Question 7 is answered based on our entire collection, but the resources s pecifically written for or identified as "non-lawyer" (e.g., in the title) are few, and our Westlaw/Lexis access is law faculty and staff only. For Question 26, Services to prisoners, our service is limited to reference phone c alls, if received, and pre-paid, specific document delivery requests. Question 27 has been answered as to the law library specifically (the Marquette University Eckstein Law Library does not itself offer clinics or a lawy er in the library program), but the Marquette University Law School does offer the Marquette Volunteer Lega I Clinic and also works with the Milwaukee Bar Association and the Milwaukee Justice Center to provide a m obile legal clinic.	1
REGARDING ALLEGANY, CATTARAUGUS, & CHAUTUAQUA COUNTIES: Provided phone numbers for th ose libraries are incorrect. New phone numbers are not available at this time.	1
Patrons have to use their own cell phones to call the Buffalo library for assistance. Very limited cell service in the law library (former bomb shelter located in courthouse sub-basement).	1
None, except: we do get refferals from the self-help center located in the courthouse, on occasion.	1

No late fees collected for 2+ years during the pandemic due to some patrons not feeling safe returning the it ems that were checked out.	1

I would like to see a permanent AALL committee created to facilitate a structured relationship between priva te law firm libraries and county law libraries as a permanent pro bono partnership. Something significant an d beyond the current occasional sharing of articles.	1
I started my position in January 2023, so my knowledge of the pandemic responses is based on hearsay. T hank you for your hard work!	1
Great survey - thanks for doing it.	1
Exponential Increases in the cost and maintenance of legal materials both electronically and in hard copy h ave far outpaced available funding. These factors place some limits on the scope and depth of a law library collection going forward. Donations from law firms and other sources like the Maryland State Law Library (di scards) have helped us in maintaining some coverage in very high cost or less used resources. A focus on the local Virginia court related legal resources takes priority and precedence when faced with much higher costs to maintain selected individual resources and services outside this scope.	1
An important note about our library currently is that we are located in temporary offices and are not in a full-on library space. We can help the public but it is limited to e-mail and phone interactions at this time. When we are in our new building (projected late 2024 or early 2025), we will be happy to welcome back in-person public patrons during regular business hours.	1
